

Rhetorical Bingo:

AP Lang Individual Rhetorical Analysis Review

Directions (read carefully!):

1. Choose 3 assignments to complete this week (April 27 - May 1).
 - a. Begin with the skills you think you need to work on the most. You will NOT be required to complete all of these, and you will see that some assignments are similar to others. This is an individual study; do what is best for YOU to grow YOUR skills where you feel it is needed! You know yourself best... use this time to reflect on your Personal Progress Log and crush your goals!
 - i. Light green assignments are strongly recommended. These are a great review of the concepts we studied at the beginning of the year.
 - ii. Light yellow assignments are great practice for writing rhetorical analysis after you have done some review. You may want to save these for deeper/additional practice.
 - b. While this is called “Bingo” you do NOT have to actually MAKE a bingo. Though, if you’re up for a challenge, it would be fun!
 - c. I suggest that you “fill” each box with the color of your choice to mark it as completed to easily keep track of assignments you have done (find the “paint can” icon once you have the cursor in the box and choose a color)
2. Track your assignments on the assignment sheet and submit Friday before 11:59am.
3. Feel free to add more rows/columns or complete tasks outside of the table if formatting isn’t working for the task.
4. Since we are no longer meeting for classroom discussion and seminars, please check in with me at least once a week to let me know how things are going and what additional support you need moving forward. Choose any of the following check-in options:
 - a. Facebook Support Group
 - b. E-mail
